Marble

Marble is the widest part of our production. White, grey, brown, green and red bodies are cut from blocks we buy and store ourselves, so a repeat order can be matched against the same batch rather than against a photograph.

Who buys it

- Importers building mixed marble containers
- Fabricators cutting vanity and island tops
- Architects specifying marble for walls and floors

Problems it solves

- Vein patterns that do not match between the sample and the container
- Colour drift when the same name is bought from several traders
- Thin or under-polished slabs that lose thickness in fabrication

What you get from us

- Blocks selected before cutting, not bought as finished slabs
- Bundles photographed before crating
- Cut-to-size fabrication available on the same order

Typical applications

- Feature walls
- Floor tiles
- Vanity tops
- Island tops
- Stair treads

Granite

Granite is the material buyers choose when the surface has to take weather and traffic. We supply it as polished or flamed slabs and as finished pieces such as monuments and vases.

Who buys it

- Facade contractors
- Paving and landscape buyers
- Countertop fabricators

Problems it solves

- Cladding batches that do not match across a facade
- Flamed finishes that vary in depth from panel to panel
- Edge chipping caused by weak export packing

What you get from us

- Polished and flamed finishes from the same plant
- Even speckle controlled by selecting blocks before cutting
- Crates built for heavy granite bundles

Typical applications

- Exterior cladding
- Paving
- Stair treads
- Kitchen counters
- Monuments

Onyx

Onyx is bought for light. The banding only shows its full depth when a panel is lit from behind, so onyx orders are usually matched slab to slab for one wall or one bar front.

Who buys it

- Hotel and restaurant fit-out buyers
- Interior designers specifying backlit stone
- Fabricators building lit panels

Problems it solves

- Panels that do not read as a continuous pattern when lit
- Fragile material damaged in transit
- Bookmatched pairs split across different shipments

What you get from us

- Bookmatched pairs kept together and numbered
- Photographs of the lit face on request
- Reinforced backing where the material needs it

Typical applications

- Backlit panels
- Bar fronts
- Feature walls
- Vanity tops
- Reception desks

Quartzite

Quartzite gives the movement buyers want from marble with a harder surface. Our quartzite range covers white, green, blue and black bodies, in slabs and in countertop lengths.

Who buys it

- Kitchen fabricators
- Designers specifying hard-wearing feature stone
- Importers stocking premium slabs

Problems it solves

- Material sold as quartzite that is in fact softer stone
- Dramatic slabs that cannot be matched for a second island
- Cutting damage from blocks that were not graded before sawing

What you get from us

- Named quartzite bodies kept separate by batch
- Slabs numbered so a pair can be reserved
- Countertop lengths cut on the same order

Typical applications

- Island tops
- Feature walls
- Backlit panels
- Reception desks
- Bar tops

Travertine

Travertine is a facade and floor material before it is a decorative one. The linear pore structure is what buyers specify, and it has to run in the same direction across a delivery.

Who buys it

- Facade contractors
- Flooring distributors
- Interior fit-out buyers

Problems it solves

- Pore direction that changes between crates
- Filled and unfilled material mixed in one order
- Tone drift between early and late deliveries

What you get from us

- Vein direction kept consistent within a bundle
- Filled or unfilled supplied as specified
- Crates marked by batch for phased delivery

Typical applications

- Facade cladding
- Floor tiles
- Wall panels
- Pool surrounds

Sandstone

Sandstone is chosen for a matte, non-reflective face. We supply grey, brown and gold bodies including wood-grain patterned sandstone used for cladding and garden walls.

Who buys it

- Landscape contractors
- Facade buyers
- Garden and villa developers

Problems it solves

- Surface texture that varies between panels
- Material that darkens unevenly after installation
- Thin panels that break during handling

What you get from us

- Texture matched within a batch
- Thickness cut for the fixing system you use
- Crates arranged for site sequencing

Typical applications

- Facade cladding
- Garden walls
- Paving
- Wall panels

Stone Bathtubs

A stone bathtub is cut from one block, so there are no joints and the pattern runs around the piece. These are shipped as single heavy items and are packed and braced individually.

Who buys it

- Hotel and resort fit-out buyers
- Villa developers
- Bathroom showroom importers

Problems it solves

- Tubs that arrive chipped because packing was not built for the weight
- Pieces that do not fit the rough-in once they reach site
- Assembled or clad tubs sold as solid stone

What you get from us

- Cut from a single block, not clad or assembled
- Drain position and wall thickness made to your drawing
- Individually braced crates

Typical applications

- Master bathrooms
- Hotel suites
- Spa rooms
- Villa projects

Stone Countertops

Countertops are supplied as finished lengths rather than full slabs, cut from the same bodies as our slab range. Edge profile, cutouts and thickness follow the buyer's drawing.

Who buys it

- Kitchen and bath fabricators
- Developers fitting out multiple units
- Importers supplying finished tops

Problems it solves

- Slabs that yield fewer tops than the fabricator planned
- Edge profiles that do not match across a kitchen
- Cutouts placed against the vein instead of with it

What you get from us

- Cutting list worked from your drawing
- Vein direction planned before the saw runs
- Edges finished and protected before crating

Typical applications

- Kitchen counters
- Island tops
- Vanity tops
- Bar tops
- Reception desks

Stone Sinks

A stone sink is carved from one piece, so the bowl has no seams. We make them in the same materials we cut for vanity tops, which lets a bathroom be matched top to bowl.

Who buys it

- Bathroom showrooms
- Hotel fit-out buyers
- Villa developers

Problems it solves

- Bowls assembled from pieces that leak at the joints
- Sinks that do not match the vanity top material
- Drain sizes that do not suit the buyer's fittings

What you get from us

- Carved from one block
- Matched to a vanity top on the same order
- Drain size made to your fitting

Typical applications

- Guest bathrooms
- Hotel vanities
- Spa rooms

Marble Fireplaces

Fireplace surrounds are carved work, not cut-to-size. The moulding profile and the carving are worked by hand from marble blocks and assembled and checked before the piece is crated.

Who buys it

- Villa developers
- Hotel interior contractors
- Classical interior specialists

Problems it solves

- Surrounds that arrive with mismatched carving between parts
- Profiles that do not follow the drawing
- Parts damaged because each element was not braced separately

What you get from us

- Dry-assembled and checked before crating
- Profiles carved to your drawing
- Each element braced separately in the crate

Typical applications

- Living rooms
- Hotel lobbies
- Villa interiors

Tombstones and Monuments

Memorial work is supplied to importers and monument dealers. Pieces are polished, shaped and prepared for engraving, in granite for durability and in marble where carved figures are wanted.

Who buys it

- Monument dealers and importers
- Cemetery suppliers
- Memorial masons

Problems it solves

- Polish quality that varies across a pallet
- Shapes that do not match the dealer's local standard
- Breakage in transit from poor bracing

What you get from us

- Western and Chinese shapes both produced
- Surfaces prepared for local engraving
- Pallets braced for memorial weights

Typical applications

- Headstones
- Cemetery monuments
- Family plots
- Memorial vases

Stone Vases

Vases are turned and polished from solid stone, usually ordered alongside monuments or garden pieces. They are small, heavy items and are packed in numbers per crate.

Who buys it

- Monument dealers
- Garden and landscape buyers
- Cemetery suppliers

Problems it solves

- Vases that do not match the monument material
- Thin walls that crack in cold climates
- Loose packing that lets pieces knock together

What you get from us

- Matched to monument material on the same order
- Turned from solid stone
- Packed with separation between pieces

Typical applications

- Cemetery monuments
- Garden planting
- Entrance decor
